

Product Recall Notice- September 26, 2022

Aero Tec Laboratories (ATL); Rotationally Mold Parts including Sport Cells®, Saver Cells®, Super Cell® 400 Series (Tail Tanks), Racells®.

Identification-

The units potentially affected were originally sold to race teams and distributors between February 2022 and July 2022. In addition, suspect units were produced in the USA, and have serial numbers that begin with 42. Tanks with serial numbers beginning with 565 (UK manufactured) are not included in the recall, nor are ANY rubberized bladder tanks, USA or UK origin.

Product Issue-

The batch of material used to produce these rotationally molded tanks, has in some environments, shown signs of premature failure. This failure possibility appears to increase after prolonged exposure to fuel. Through subsequent accelerated aging tests of finished samples produced from this same batch of resin, ATL has identified genuine cause for concern. As such, ATL is recalling all effected products.

Hazard-

In the case of impact the product may not perform as intended causing potential fluid spill or, in the case of the Tail Tanks, the inner bladder could be exposed to the elements.

Action required –

Race Teams and Distributors that have purchased ATL products that meet the above criteria must contact ATL with serial number information to confirm if your product is one of those affected. ATL may be reached on atl@atlinc.com, or 800-526-5330. Upon confirmation, ATL will either provide a written confirmation that your product is not affected or discuss the next steps in replacing your product.
